Focus on Mid-, Small-caps Again

A big majority of the poll participants (70%) believe that it is time to step up in the mid- and small-cap space again. The BSE MidCap index has gained 3% so far in July after falling 15.7% from life-high in January. The SmallCap index also fell 120.6% from record high in mid-January but gained 2.6% in July. "The overbought positions in mid- and small-caps have reduced. From here on the mid- and small-caps should do better than the large-caps," said Sunil Singhania, founder, Abakkus Asset Manager LLP. More than half the gains in benchmark indices from 2018 lows have come from a handful of stocks including Tata Consultancy Services, Reliance Industries, Hindustan Unilever, Kotak Mahindra Bank and HDFC Bank. This has made some fund managers cautious and wary. "It has been a narrow rally driven by a few stocks. Good number of mid- and small-caps have been under pressure," says Navet Munot, CIO, SBIME. "A better way would be to participate through SIP route given the volatility. Some of the mid- and small-caps have seen decent correction and are likely to see buying interest emerging there."

The pick-up in mid- and small-caps, if sustained beyond July, could revive the broader market which has been in deep funk since the first quarter of 2018. BSE member Ramesh Damani believes that more stocks are participating in the rally. "The bull market is intact and what we saw was a painful correction. Now the breadth of the market is good and earnings have been surprising positively," said Damani. "We remain optimistic that it's not a fluke new high but a sustainable new high for the market," added Damani.

DOMESTIC FLOWS

Apart from corporate earnings, markets have also been held up by strong domestic flows. Though flows from high net worth individuals appear to have tapered off, retail flows are still going strong with systematic investment plans showing no signs of slowdown yet. The poll's participants believe that domestic flows are likely to sustain and not abate. About 50% believe that domestic flows will continue at the same level with 25% believing that it will come down from current levels. Another 25% think that it will go up. The revival of foreign investors' flows, however, could take some time with 55% not seeing any pick-up soon. "For a meaningful revival of FPI flows the following two conditions need to be met. One, revival of risk appetite, especially for emerging markets. The other factor of political uncertainty is over for India," said Vivek Ranjan Misra, head of Fundamental Research at Karvy Stock Broking. "This means a meaningful revival may occur in late part of FY19 and early FY20," said Misra. FPIs are net sellers of Indian shares worth Rs 6,000 crore (including Friday's provisional data) so far in 2018. Mutual funds have pumped in Rs 72,000 crore in Indian equities this year (data available till July 20). "Outlook of earnings growth has been getting better...from here till December, we may see index moving up as earnings traction gets better," said Rajat Rajgarhia, chief executive officer at Motilal Oswal Institutional Equities.

CRUDE CONCERNS

Crude oil prices have dropped off lately, but they remain on top as the most pressing concern. About 36% believe rising crude is the biggest danger to Indian economy followed by 20% who believe it is rising bond yields. Only 16% think general election results of 2019 is a bigger worry. Most believe that there is a high likelihood of the Bharatiya Janata Party-led NDA returning to power in 2019, though with reduced numbers. An overwhelming 90% think that the BJP will win with reduced seats. About 65% of respondents believe the government will meet its fiscal deficit target of 3.3% for March 2019 and also the disinvestment target of Rs 80,000 crore. Half the participants expect inflation to be range bound and not cross the 5% by March 18. About 50% believe that it will be about 5% by March, while 22% each think it will be at 4.5% and 4.75%. Only 6% believe that it will overshoot the 5% mark.

Parental Consent

"This is only exacerbated in the digital world, where data collection and processing is largely opaque and mired in complex consent forms," the panel said in its report submitted to the government on Friday. Though some of the websites and apps allow children to sign up if they are 13 years of age or older, their consent to the terms and conditions isn't valid under India's laws. Under the Indian Contract Act 1872, a minor cannot enter into a contract — this would mean that they could not have consented to the terms and conditions of usage of websites and apps. The Srikrishna panel is recommending enforcement of this. Google, Facebook, Instagram and Byju's were not immediately available for comment. "Since companies targeting children can't profile such children, track behavioural data and send targeted advertising the companies are dependent on, revenues may be hit," said Kartik Maheshwari, leader for technology companies at law firm Nishith Desai Associates.

The draft law requires companies to set up age-verification mechanisms and get parental consent of users under the age of 18 to process data. Some experts think it may lead to higher compliance costs but is a step in the right direction.

'Cos Have Role in

"There are some people, you must have seen, who don't have single photograph taken with corporates. But there would be no corporate which wouldn't have prostrated before them at their homes," Modi said. The PM, who was in Lucknow to green-flag Rs 60,000 crore worth industrial projects in UP, pointed to history to emphasise his points with India Inc. H D Gandhi had no problem in GD Birla's home photographed with Mahatma's intention. "But there are not meet corporates things behind closed doors the ones who are scare ate corporates? Is that

40 Exits in H1 of 2018

According to a Grant Thornton report, the first half of calendar year 2018 has been a record-breaking period for the industry, witnessing deals valued at over $9 billion — a 10% increase over the year-to-date period. This was largely characterised by large-value deals — of over $100 million — as pension funds, sovereign wealth funds and global buyout funds increased their India exposure. "It's a myth that India has under-performed when it comes to providing exit to investors. It has been amongst the best performing markets for non-tech private equity... The Indian public market has been one of the best performing markets globally, and by a margin," an investment banker from a top merchant bank told ET.

According to industry data, PE investors unlocked $13.4 billion worth of investments in over 40 exits in the first half of 2018, with a marked increase in exits via secondary sales, including initial public offerings, which increased 68% compared with the first half of 2017. "Even if you have a half decent portfolio, you could be making money hand over fist," the banker told ET.

However, there are riders to this. Of the targeted $15 billion so far, 14 funds have been able to raise only $1 billion so far, highlighting concerns of global investors primarily related to India's macroeconomic conditions.

In 2017, 34 PE funds had raised $3.9 billion, according to Preqin data.

"Conversations with limited partners have changed... There are concerns over the political landscape given that elections are around the corner and the stability of the rupee, amongst others," said Jayanta Basu, managing partner at CX Partners. The PE firm is currently in the process of raising its second sector-agnostic fund, and has, reportedly, made the first close at $250 million.
